DISTURBING: Unvaccinated Women Claim Unusual Menstrual Cycles & Miscarriages After Being Near Recently Vaccinated Individuals

4-5 minutes

Dozens of women are reporting bizarre menstrual issues and even miscarriages after being physically close to people who had recently received their COVID-19 vaccination.

See hundreds of testimonials in the video below:

An Instagram user recently posted a personal message about suddenly missing her menstrual cycle two months in a row after years of normal cycles.

Next, the Instagram user saw mainstream media reports about women who took the COVID vaccine experiencing “heavier and more painful periods” and having “breakthrough bleeding in the middle of a cycle after getting the shot.”

Women say they are having heavier and more painful PERIODS since getting their COVID-19 vaccines - as several claim it has also messed up their monthly cycle

- Dr. Kate Clancy, a University of Illinois associate professor, said that she'd heard people had experienced changes in their menstruation since getting vaccinated
- Her tweet prompted other women to share changes to their own periods
- Several reported that they were bleeding more heavily and for longer than they had before getting the vaccine
- A few said they began menstruating in the middle of their cycles, days or weeks before they were supposed to
- Experts aren't sure why some women might see changes to their periods, and so far there is not enough data to know whether it is connected to the vaccine
- A small study this year found that some participants saw changes to their menstruation after contracting the virus

There were also reports of women vaccinated for COVID having miscarriages soon after.

When the woman saw two separate testimonies from other females who said they weren't vaccinated but had extremely unusual menstrual cycles, something clicked.

At this point, the Instagram user wondered if the issues vaccinated women were experiencing could be somehow transferred to unvaccinated women like herself.

After hypothesizing the spike protein in the experimental mRNA vaccine could potentially be shedding and causing illness in unvaccinated women, the woman's Instagram was flooded with thousands of messages from people around the globe.

The account went from 9,000 to 30,000 followers in less than 24 hours and the woman started to post the hundreds of messages she received to her story.

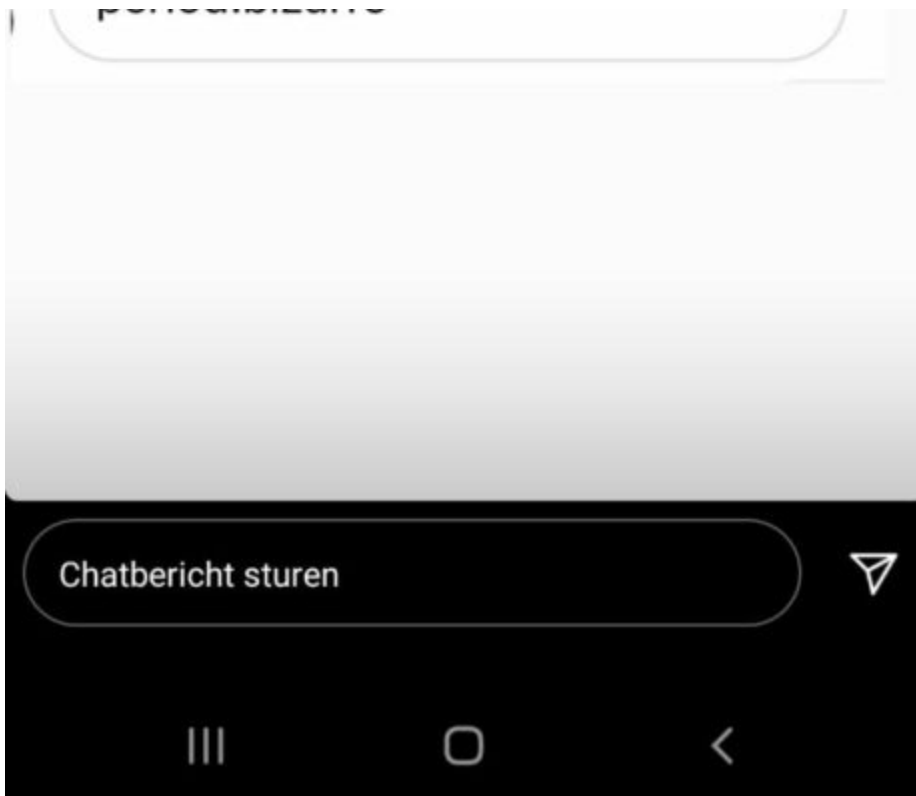

The messages came in from around the planet in many different languages.

From unvaccinated pharmacists who administer COVID shots every shift having miscarriages to a woman claiming to have produced a positive pregnancy test while on her period, the testimonials are insane.

The women chiming in described abnormally heavy flows, early bleeding, spotting, totally skipping their periods for months in a row, miscarriages and even decidual casts.

weeks early in my cycle (no bc). I bled for almost 2 weeks, then spotted for about 1 week then started bleeding heavy again. Definitely not normal for my very regular and short monthly cycles. I told my mom that I thought it had something to do with the vaccine but I felt crazy thinking that since it wasn't supposed to shed. My boss had Moderna and was VERY sick after the first jab. I'm so glad people are speaking up about this.

Kim!! I just saw your two stories about people reaching out w their periods messed up

My cousin works in healthcare and all her coworkers got the vax.

She just had an early period that was incredibly painful and not normal at all. She has no clue why - and as soon as I saw your recent stories it clicked in my head and I texted her. I told her to message you!

Two miscarriages in 4 months.
Have you heard of anything that

Have you heard of anything that could be possibly causing clotting issues recently? I have.

Hi Kim. I've been reading your stories on the vaxx, shedding, and clots. I'm an RN. Our hospital has been taking in covid patients for over a year now. I've not been vaccinated, but the overwhelming majority of my coworkers have been. I've also had two miscarriages in the past four months after two easy conceptions/pregnancies/healthy births previously. After working with various holistic practitioners, we're learning that I'm having clotting issues that are preventing my uterus from being able to support an attached embryo.

I know correlation doesn't equal causation. Your stories have been startling me, though, and I wanted to add mine for others to read.

Hi Kim! I am a nurse in LTC and am job free and will continue to be. After our 2nd vaccination clinic at our facility my period was 2.5 weeks late, which is extremely odd for me. (Even took a pregnancy test which was negative) ever since vaccination began at work and I have been experiencing a big increase in migraines. These stories are crazy and I thank you for sharing them!

Another pharmacist:

I have even been having really bad heavy periods in last 3 months, had to take aleve the last 2 cycles which I haven't needed for 10 years at least, and Im usually like clockwork, not on any BC, its been off... this is insane. I even attributed the changes to getting older, aka turning 35 🧑🏻 🤔

After learning some women experienced decidual casts, where the lining of their uterus falls out, the Instagram user was sharp enough to do a simple search for the term on Google trends.

The term, which the woman says she never heard of before the testimonials, suspiciously spiked in search results during January 2021 as COVID vaccines were being rolled out.

Women are not the only humans who could be in danger of infertility if issues like this spread.
